Fulton Bridge to Open to Traffic Saturday

Dedication Date Set For May 6

Important Link in Highway No. 67 Is Open to Tourists

Route, Hope-Texarkana Ready with Concrete and Gravel

PAVEMENT OPEN

Two Cities Will Join in Dedication of Red River Bridge

The Fulton state toll bridge will be opened to traffic this Saturday, April 12, B. B. Stanford, state highway district engineer, announced today.

This bridge will be formally dedicated Tuesday May 6, Mr. Stanford having received word from Chief Engineer C. S. Christian that this date will be acceptable to members of the State Highway Commission who expect to attend the dedication program.

Program Arranged

Program arrangements are in charge of a joint committee of the Texarkana and Hope Chambers of Commerce. Tentative plans for the dedication were made at a luncheon in Hotel Barlow here a month ago, when it was agreed to ask the State Highway Commission to set a date as close as possible to May 1.

The million-dollar bridge, with its high roadbed and flaring approaches that reach for a mile or more on the Miller county side of the bridge, was completed this week. It was virtually finished last month, except for the toll-house on the Hempstead county side, which is now ready.

Road Now Open

Traffic on No. 67 will move through Hope on the Fulton bridge on the old gravel route, which is in good condition. It will cross the river on the bridge and revert to the gravel road for about a mile west of the bridge; and will then ride on new concrete pavement as far as Paul's Spur. There is a gravel detour from this point to the second section of concrete, which carries traffic on into Texarkana.

The opening of the bridge will virtually restore through traffic to No. 67, which has been closed to tourists for seven or eight months. Through traffic has been detoured around Hope by way of DeQueen, Glenwood and Hot Springs.

The Fulton bridge celebration, May 6, will be followed the next day by the formal opening of the new bridge across the Ouachita near Donaldson, another concrete link on No. 67.

Colleen Moore Quits Husband

Palace of Dreams Turns Out to be Heart Break House

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., April 10.—John E. McCormick today sat sadly among the ruins of the happiness that once was his and Colleen Moore's. "She's gone," he said.

He was in the new $200,000 home that he and Colleen built last summer—a palace of dreams that turned out to be a heart break house. There doesn't seem to be much hope of a reconciliation, Colleen has gone to live with her mother, Mrs. B. C. Morrison. She eventually will file suit for divorce, she said.

John says he will go to San Francisco to visit his mother, and when he does, his wife will return to occupy the Bel-Air mansion, with its dolls, its somber servants, its huge sun room and its setting in loveliness. As to Miss Moore's chance of returning to pictures, Myron Selznick, her agent, has been trying unsuccessfully for some time to sell her services for $12,000 a week, the salary she once received. Last week Selznick came down to $7,500 and there were no takers.

McCormick was Miss Moore's press agent and business manager. They were married here in 1923.

Patmos School Case on Trial in Hempstead Chancery Court

BUSH GETS REPORT

Text of Grand Jury Report at Washington Today

The Hempstead county grand jury completed its investigation for the spring term of circuit court early this afternoon and was discharged by Judge Dexter Bush after reporting a total of 79 indictments.

Simultaneous with the spring term of circuit court, Chancellor C. E. Johnson, of Ashdown, began a hearing in chancery court over the matter of law raised by the recent school consolidation at Patmos. The court is asked to rule on whether authority since the consolidation of the south county districts rests with the Patmos local board, the newly elected consolidated board, or all the members of the former local boards taken collectively.

The Patmos hearing, which has drawn many officials, witnesses and spectators from the lower end of the county, is the chief trial case of the day.

In circuit court, the grand jury presented the following report to Judge Bush:

Grand Jury Report.

We, your grand jury for the April term, 1930 of the Hempstead Circuit Court beg to report as follows:

We have examined into all crimes and misdemeanors that have come to our knowledge and we have examined all witnesses available in such cases and as a result of our labor we have found indictments in all cases where we thought the evidence sufficient and in so doing have examined 164 witnesses and have returned into open court 79 true bills of indictment.

We have in a body visited and examined the County Jail. We found the same well kept and in good sanitary condition. We find the County Court House in good repair and well taken care of. We have visited 11 different county officers in the Court House and found records neatly kept. We found several constables settle their accounts in full.

We had a committee to visit the City Jail in Hope and found the same to be well kept and in a sanitary condition. We also had a committee visit and examine the County Poor House and found same well kept.

We wish to thank the officers of the Court for the courtesy shown us and for the kindness and willingness at all times in administering to our wants.

Now having completed our labors we respectfully ask that we be discharged.

Respectfully submitted,

J. F. JOHNSON, Foreman.

Death Car Sought In Murder Mystery

Mrs. A. J. Bass Will Not Visit Husband In Jail

BENTONVILLE, April 10.—(AP)—Search is under way today for what is believed to have been the death car in which William Robert Pearman, victim of a $200,000 life insurance conspiracy was believed to have "taken a ride."

How I fry fish . . . without smoke

(and with an improvement in the flavor)

1 I prepare the fish. Then I put Crisco into a cold frying pan. To cook the fish without smoke or scorching I fry slowly. I use enough Crisco to partly cover it. It does not require the constant attention trying would if I were to use only a little fat.

2 I put the frying pan over low heat. As soon as Crisco is melted, I put in a small piece of bread.

3 As soon as the bread starts to brown, I put in the fish. Cook slowly until the fish is nearly done; then turn to brown the other side. With plenty of Crisco in the frying pan, I can turn the fish easily without breaking, if I wait until it is almost done.

4 I strain the Crisco back into the empty can through cheese-cloth or a fine sieve. Then I can use the Crisco for the next thing I want to fry. Crisco doesn't carry the flavor of one food to the next. Furthermore, Crisco itself tastes sweet and fresh, just as it comes from its airtight can. And, when you come to think of it, should you ever fry in a fat you are unwilling to taste?

What Farmer is RICH ENOUGH to toss away such PROFIT?

$294.00 per acre more net profit for apples. $27.50 more net profit for wheat. $17.25 more for oats, $349.00 more for oranges, $36.00 more for corn, $182.00 more for potatoes.

These and hundreds of other reports come from farmers who have increased the yield of their money-crops by top-dressing with Sulphate of Ammonia. What farmer can afford to let such profit get by?

Business-like farmers follow a tested fertilizer program to assure bumper yields. First, they apply a complete fertilizer, high in nitrogen, at planting time. Then, when the crops begin to feed heavily, they top-dress with Sulphate of Ammonia.

Arcadian Sulphate of Ammonia top-dressing supplies an extra amount of nitrogen when the crops need it most. Arcadian is rich in nitrogen (20.56 per cent guaranteed.) All soluble, all quickly usable. It's fine and dry—easy to put out—and one application lasts through any ordinary growing season.

To be sure of your supply of Arcadian Sulphate of Ammonia, place your order with your fertilizer dealer when you buy your mixed goods. Farmers everywhere are invited to write The Barrett Company for information on nitrogen fertilizer problems. Address our nearest office.

Courage isn't the last resort in the work of life or the game of sport. It isn't a thing that a man can call at some future time when he's apt to fail; if he hasn't it now, he will have it not. When the strain is great and the pace is hot. For who would strive for a distant goal. Must always have courage within his soul. Courage was never designed for show; it isn't a thing that can come and go; it's written in victory and defeat. And every trial a man may meet. Courage is more than a daring deed; it's the breath of life and a strong man's creed.—E. A. G.

Sheriff Granted Change of Venue

M. L. Ledgerwood of Ozark Denies Attack Charge

ALTUS, April 10.—Change of venue from the court of Justice Simon Toland at Greenwood, four miles south of here, to the court of Justice J. H. Holliday here was granted in the case of Sheriff M. L. Ledgerwood, charged with attempted assault, and he will be given a preliminary hearing the morning of April 15. The charge was brought by Mrs. Tom Randolph, wife of a prisoner held in jail at Ozark on a liquor charge. She says that Sheriff Ledgerwood attacked her while taking her from Ozark, where she had been to visit her husband, to her home in Altus. Sheriff Ledgerwood said the charge is a frame-up of political enemies.

They were looking over the Grand Canyon. Said the guide: "It took millions of years for this great abyss to be carved out." "Did, eh?" queried one of the party. "I never knew before that it was a government job."

Minister's Faith Is Satisfactory

Dr. Hay W. Smith's View on Evolution Is Probed

OSCEOLA, Ark., April 10.—(AP)—Dr. Hay Watson Smith's views on the theory of evolution are not of sufficient character to disqualify him as a minister in the Southern Presbyterian church, a report of a commisbytery to inquire into the Little Rock minister's beliefs, reported Wednesday to the presbytery. Five of the commissioners signed the report, but two refused on the ground that "as members of the commission we are placed in the absurd position of being asked to investigate a matter and being denied the means of investigation." Rev. A. Killough of Marianna and Rev. J. A. McJunkin of Forrest City, refused to sign the report. Other members of the commission were the following ministers: M. A. Boggs, chairman, C. W. Campbell, Conway; S. R. Patterson, Marietta, and laymen Dr. F. R. Long, Batesville, and John R. Hampton, Little Rock.

Texarkana Has $75,000 Fire Loss

Five Buildings, Including Box Factory, Are Destroyed

TEXARKANA, April 10.—Fire, believed to have started from a cigarette shortly after noon Wednesday destroyed a box factory, storage house and two dry kilns of the State Lumber company's plant on Rose Hill. A home was burned, several others damaged before the fire was controlled after a two-hour battle. Loss was estimated at approximately $75,000. The blaze, fanned by a stiff breeze, required all fire apparatus of the city to get it under control. Loss is fully covered by insurance. Approximately 100 men will be thrown out of employment. A child, believed to have been trapped in one of the burning buildings, returned home after visiting neighbors.

On Friday, April 11, there will be a track meet at the city park in Hope between the Hot Springs "Trogans" and the Hope High "Bobcats." The meet is expected to be a good one for both towns have good teams this year. Hope has a fair team of green men, who are fast and sure-footed athletes. FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Things Are Happening

The year are wondering what their pitchers will or will not do for them later.

"I am sure we have the punch to make things unpleasant for the other teams," said the genial Dan.

In addition to the hitters the Red's had last year, we have brought in two great long distance hitters in two great long distance hitters in Harry Heilmann and Bob Meusel and Tony Cuccinello, the youngster from Columbus, has shown that he can hit about as far as anybody.

We have added some fielding strength, too, for Leo Durocher is as capable fielder as I have seen in my many years of baseball and certainly Hughie Critz can go get 'em with anybody in the game. From the limited chance I have seen to observe the others in action, I have seen nothing to worry about the defense.

"The pitching is important and that is where I am giving my efforts now. We started by running. Everybody ran but the pitchers most of all for the legs in shape a pitcher is well on the road to condition.

"All I can promise is that the team will hustle every minute of every game. There's nothing like dashing in and at 'em and then dashing out again to battle 'em in the field. This can not fail to show results."

Braves Search For New Punch

Say That Defense is Strong, But Hitting is Needed

Braves Search—Sports NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP)—Bill McKechnie, manager of the Boston Braves, is looking for power, punch and attack and the athletes who can give it to him will have jobs with the Braves.

"A great defensive team may be very pretty to look at," said Bill, "but it won't win many ball games. To win games a team must score runs and you can't get many runs without getting hits."

He is looking for hits and the players who convince him that they have the hits in their bats will be in the lineup, whether or not they can field.

"We will change them around until we have the right combination. Some of these big, powerful young fellows can give the ball a ride and we will have a place for them somewhere."

"We have some good pitchers, but their pitching will be wasted if we can not give them some runs to work on."

"The catching staff is not as strong as it should be and we are looking for additional strength there in particular. Too, we have too many lefthanded batsmen. A majority of the infielders and outfielders hit from the left side of the plate."

"We plan to keep on experimenting toward the object of getting punch into the team. Something may come of it."

Cincy Hurlers Bother Howley

DORIS MATTHEWS, lady, who is considered the most beautiful girl in the city, was found dead in her room at the Hamilton Hotel, Hope, Ark., on Saturday morning by Detective JOHN J. DUNDEE, who was on duty at the time.

The body was found in a room on the second floor of the hotel. The door was open and the room was in a state of confusion. The body was lying on the floor, and the cause of death was determined to be a blow on the head.

The detective found a note pinned to the wall, which read: "Doris Matthews, murdered." The note was written in a woman's hand, and the handwriting was identified as that of MRS. GEORGE BERKELEY, who was the only person known to have been in the room at the time of the murder.

The detective also found a small box containing a pair of gloves, a handkerchief, and a small bottle of perfume. The box was labeled "Doris Matthews," and the contents were identified as belonging to her.

The detective is now working to identify the person who wrote the note and the person who was in the room at the time of the murder. He has interviewed several people who were in the hotel at the time, but has not yet found any leads.

you and Doris that he planned to bribe her to discourage your attention?"

"Bribe her!" Dick snorted contemptuously. "She didn't need to be bribed to discourage my attention. What the devil put such an idea into your head anyway?"

"Oh, nothing much," Dundee answered evasively. "Just something she wrote to her sister, Kathryn, in England. She said she knew where she could get as much as or more than she needed to open a shop."

He did not add that he had documentary proof that George Berkeley was the "angel" that Doris had referred to.

"SHE didn't mean Dad," Dick retorted emphatically. "I suppose she meant she could borrow the money on a business basis."

"Now look here, Dundee! You'll save time and trouble for yourself if you'll take my word for it that Doris Matthews was straight as a string and good clear through to the marrow of her bones. Any cockeyed theory of yours that makes her out otherwise is the bunk!"

"So," Mrs. Lambert and Wickett have told me, to say nothing of Seymour Crosby," Dundee told him cheerfully. "And Gigs is ready to scratch my eyes out if I dare question Doris's integrity. And yet Doris was murdered. Dick, by someone to whom her life was a menace."

Dick stared at the young detective, then slowly his weak face hardened into lines of character. "You'll put your finger on it, Dundee," he said sternly. "Doris was killed because she knew something which would have ruined the person who murdered her. Doris couldn't be bribed, so she had to die!"

"Johnson?" Dundee suggested. "Lord, I don't know!" Dick slumped again into a miserable huddle beneath the steering wheel.

"Well, here's the City Hall. Want me to wait for you?"

"Please, I shan't be gone long," Dundee answered, as he swung his long legs over the door he did not trouble to open.

His destination was an office on the top floor of the City Hall. He opened a door inscribed:

Dr. Abel G. Jennings
City Chemist and Toxicologist

When he emerged 10 minutes later he was whistling blithely, for he had secured not only the doctor's promise to analyze Gigs's perfume bottle for traces of poison, but also his promise to keep the job a strict secret. And the doctor was to telephone results on Sunday morning, though it meant to must work half the night, at least.

When he returned to the car parked at the curb he found Dick with his head bowed upon the steering wheel and for a moment he thought the boy was asleep. But at the sound of his name Dick's head jerked up and Dundee saw that he had been crying.

"To Police Headquarters now, Dick," he said gently.

They drove in silence, Dick gnawing at his trembling lips.

"Want to come in with me,

Dick?" Dundee asked, when the car drew up before the big, ugly building.

"No!" the boy retorted with strange violence.

Captain Strawn was in his office on the first floor. Feet on his desk, uniform unbuttoned at the neck, the chief of the homicide squad was glaring at the telephone when Dundee entered.

"Any news, chief?"

Strawn growled. "Every nut in the state has planned in that he's seen Johnson. But we haven't got Johnson, if that's what you mean. As sick a getaway as I ever saw. But what are you doing here? Why ain't you playing bridge or golf or ping pong with your swell friends?"

"I prefer to stay at Hillcrest, at least until Monday," Captain Strawn, Dundee said, without any "and for reasons not at all connected with bridge or golf. But if you need me here, naturally I'm at your service."

The chief's heavy face cleared. His even grin showed shamefacedly. "Stay where you are, boy. The Johnson hunt is routine, and I don't really need you. . . . Trying to run down the old Crosby case to your own satisfaction?" he added interestedly.

"Something like that," Dundee admitted evasively. "Thanks much, chief. And one more thing, if George Berkeley or anyone else at Hillcrest telephones to ask if he's at liberty to leave the grounds and go where he pleases, I wish you'd tactfully intimate that the police would much prefer all members of the household, except the help which doesn't live in, to remain on the estate, at least until Monday morning."

"We've got no authority to do that, Dundee," Strawn objected, frowning. "I can say that's what we'd prefer, but if Berkeley or anyone else there wants to take his sue—"

"Then will you arrange to have a plainclothes man with a motorcycle, or unmarked car stationed near the gates on the main road, ready to follow anyone who does insist upon leaving? I'm not including the cook's assistant, Mrs. Andrews, of course, nor the two gardeners, all of whom live in Hamilton and will have to be permitted to return to their homes at night."

Captain Strawn's narrowed gray eyes studied the young man for a long minute. Perhaps he was reminding himself of the Rhodes House murders, for whose startling solution was this imaginative and obstinate cub detective largely responsible. Or he may only have been remembering that Bonnie Dundee was the adored nephew of the Police Commissioner. At any rate he nodded, at last.

"O. K., Dundee, I've got nearly every man available tied up on the Johnson hunt, but I'll try to arrange it."

"Thanks, Chief. By the way, what is Dr. Price's verdict?"

"Death by drowning," Strawn replied. "She was unconscious when the body was rolled into the lake, but she would not have died from the effect of the blow on the head. And his snap judgment was right; death took place between 11 and 12 o'clock last night."

DUNDEE'S third call was a visit to the office of the fingerprint expert, Carraway.

"Yes," that busy young man answered Dundee's first question. "The mouthprint on the mirror was made by the dead girl, all right. But—a funny thing: I didn't find any of her fingerprints on the porcelain-topped dressing table below the mirror. Matter of fact, I didn't find any fingerprints there except yours and Dick Berkeley's and you've told me that you were playing nurse to the kid this morning when he got sick."

"Yes," Dundee agreed. "Then the dressing-table and basin had been wiped clean?"

"Absolutely clean," Carraway shrugged. "By the way, here's your Berkeley's toothbrush. I swiped this morning to get his fingerprints from, as you suggested. Better smuggle it back into this room before he accuses a maid of stealing it. Wonder if anybody ever stole a used toothbrush?" he ruminated, with a chuckle.

But Dundee had more weighty matters to occupy his mind. As he slowly descended the broad, dirty stairs to the first floor of Police Headquarters he was turning Carraway's two bits of information this way and that for all they were worth.

"Of course," he told himself, "Doris, being the tidy and efficient little person she was, undoubtedly wiped off Mrs. Berkeley's dressing-table and basin with a used towel when she had finished giving the 'facial.' But—how could Doris fall against the mirror without touching the dressing-table? Whether she tripped and fell or was pushed, she must have tried instinctively to steady herself. Her fingerprints must have been on that dressing-table! And not even the most efficient maid goes about wiping off fingerprints from an otherwise immaculate surface."

The question is—who wiped them off? Answer: the person who pushed Doris Matthews so that her rouged mouth left its print upon the mirror. Second question: why didn't the same person remove the rouge spot from the mirror? Answer: because he or she was in a great hurry and did not notice the spot; or he or she was more concerned with removing his or her own fingerprints from that porcelain-topped table than in eliminating possible traces of Doris's presence there. . . . Why? Because Doris had a right to be there and the maid's attacker did not? Answer: possibly, or—quite probably!"

He was so absorbed in his speculations that his physical movements were almost automatic. Otherwise he must have realized before he reached it that the roadster was empty.

Dundee was about to turn away from the car to search nearby cigar and drug stores for his missing chauffeur when he caught sight of a scrap of paper affixed to the steering wheel by means of a postage stamp. His hand shook as he reached for the note.
